Need to Know reports from Charlotte, N.C., the site of the Democratic convention. Anchor Jeff Greenfield looks ahead to what Mitt Romney's first hundred days in office might look like and what Barack Obama might do in the days immediately following his possible re-election.

Jeff interviews Major Garrett about what each candidate will face should they win in November. Garrett spent eight years at Fox News where he was the Chief White House Correspondent. Garrett is now the White House Correspondent for National Journal.

In Jeff's Final Note, he looks back at elections past and notes that sometimes there are black swans in politics – completely unpredictable events such as the assassination of Robert Kennedy and the financial meltdown in 2008 – that alter the outcomes of elections.

On this week's episode, anchor Jeff Greenfield looks ahead to next week's Democratic national convention in Charlotte. We report on efforts by Democrats to win the white, working-class vote in Ohio: a constituency considered key to carrying the state, and winning the election.

The in-studio interview from Tampa is with Walter Shapiro, who has covered American politics for more than four decades who writes for The New Republic, for the Columbia Journalism Review, and for Yahoo! News and Tim Carney, senior political columnist at the Washington Examiner. He's the author, most recently, of Obamanomics—a look at the President's economic policy. Greenfield asks his guests about the democrats chances in Ohio and if the Republicans successfully made their case to voters following the republican convention.

Later, we take a look at the convention speeches that propelled unlikely candidates to the nomination — and even to the White House.

MAJOR LAND PURCHASE: Governor Cuomo signs the largest land deal in the Adirondacks in more than a century. The State has agreed to purchase 69,000 acres of pristine land and waterways in the Upper Hudson region for nearly 50-million dollars. The land was part of a bigger purchase by The Nature Conservancy a few years ago, that included another 93 thousand acres that the State has bought conservation easements to protect. In announcing the deal, Governor Cuomo said many of the lands included in the 69,000 acres will be opened to the public for the first time in 150 years, and will boost tourism in that part of the Adirondack Park. Critics says the loss of working timberlands will costs hundreds of jobs. GROWING THREAT: A new invasive species has invaded Lake George, and scientists worry it'll only be a matter of time before it moves on to Lake Champlain. They warn the Spiny Water Flea could potentially change the make up of the food chain in the lakes, threatening some species of native fish. STATE OF THE LAKE: The threat of invasive species is just one of many challenges facing Lake Champlain detailed in a new report card by the Lake Champlain Basin Program. It says excess nutrients, primarily phosphorous from farm fields, forest lands and urban runoff is the number one threat to the lake. TOLL HIKE: Are truckers in New York being unfairly targeted to pay higher tolls on the New York State Thruway? TAPPAN ZEE: Will drivers and taxpayers foot the bill to replace one of the most-heavily traveled commuter bridges in New York State? The Tappan Zee Bridge along the Thruway over the Hudson River will cost 5-billion dollars to replace. CRUISERS CRUSHED: An angry farmer is accused of going on a rampage with a tractor, crushing 7 police cruisers parked at the Orleans County Sheriff's Department in the Northern Border village of Newport, Vermont. THIRD BID: The Olympic Games in London renew talk of Lake Placid hosting the Olympics for the third time. We talk with ORDA's Ted Blazer about the bid process, and whether Lake Placid is interested in playing host to the World again. RAGING RIVERS: The powerful images captured by photographers, who through their lens tell the story of the Tropical Storm Irene's destruction, are on display in a new exhibit at the Adirondack History Center Museum in Elizabethtown.

Thirty years after the discovery of the AIDS virus among gay white men, nearly half of the one million people in the United States infected with HIV are black men, women and children. This groundbreaking FRONTLINE exploration of one of the country's most urgent, preventable health crises traces the history of the epidemic through the experiences of extraordinary individuals who tell their stories: Nel, a 63-year old grandmother who married a deacon in her church and later found an HIV diagnosis tucked into his Bible; Tom and Keith, who call themselves "Bornies," survivors who were born with the virus in the early 1990s; and Jovanté, a high school football player who didn't realize what HIV meant until it was too late. From Magic Johnson to civil rights pioneer Julian Bond, from pastors to health workers, people on the front lines tell moving stories of the battle to contain the spread of the virus, and the opportunity to turn the tide of the epidemic. The director/producer/writer is Renata Simone, producer of the 2006 award-winning FRONTLINE series "The Age of AIDS."

Students and teachers from West Philadelphia High School, a public high school serving one of the most disadvantaged neighborhoods in Philadelphia, defy expectations as they design and build two super-hybrid cars for international competition and compete for the chance to be part of a technological revolution. In summer 2010, the high school's EVX Team raced against mega-sized auto manufacturers, multimillion-dollar start-ups, and university teams from around the world in the Progressive Insurance Automotive X PRIZE competition. The challenge: build an affordable, 100 miles-per-gallon car. The prize: $10 million dollars. In Fast Times at West Philly High, FRONTLINE explores the viability of these cars, the potential that exists within our young people, and the prospects of effective innovation in public education. Also in this hour, a growing body of evidence suggests that the make-or-break moment for high school dropouts may actually be in middle school. And yet middle schools, with their vulnerable population, have long been overlooked. Now a group of dedicated educators are thrusting middle school onto center stage. They want to use data to find the answer to the middle school malaise. What's more, they insist this data already exists, has enormous power to help repair a broken school system and to predict and prevent dropouts before they happen.

From a nationwide casting call of more than 50,000 high school students participating in 30 regional competitions, just 60 musical theater performers earn the right to participate for one week in the National High School Musical Theater Awards competition. Cameras follow these talented performers, the best in the country, to New York, where they meet their colleagues face-to-face. As day one unfolds, they learn a new opening number from director Van Kaplan and choreographer Kiesha Lalama, get one-on-one coaching in music, theater, dancing and acting from some of Broadway's top talent – including Leslie Odom, Jr. ("Smash"; Rent); Michael McElroy (Tony and Drama Desk Award nominations for Big River; Rent, Miss Saigon); Liz Callaway (Tony Award nomination for Baby; Cats, Miss Saigon) – and prepare for their solos in front of an influential group of judges. The episode ends with students wondering, "Do I have what it takes to make it on Broadway?"
